Nonfiction Writing Prompts

1. Write a three-paragraph article for your local newspaper, explaining the benefits of being a homeschooled student.

2. Make a list of twenty specific things you would like to learn this month in geography, history, math or science. Research the first one and write a brief summary of what you've learned.

3. When you have children someday, do you think you will choose to homeschool them? Why or why not?

4. Choose three subject areas that work especially well in a homeschool. Write one paragraph about each one, explaining how the subject is well-suited for home study.

5. List three subject areas that you think would be easier to learn in a larger school. Write a paragraph about each one, explaining why you think it would be easier to learn in a larger school.

6. Write a description of your favorite homeschool field trip so far. Tell where and when you went, what you saw, what you did, and why you enjoyed it.

7. Make a list of ten new places you'd like to visit as part of your homeschool studies. Research their locations and hours. Write a proposal to your parents to explain why you would like to visit five of these places.

8. Write a letter of recommendation for your parent, explaining to your younger sibling why s/he makes a great homeschool teacher.
