

I'm Going on a Trip

Here's a preschool phonics adaptation of another classic game.

1. Divide your class into groups of 4-6 students each.
2. Choose one consonant for the first round. For this example, we'll begin with H. Tell students that each of them will need to choose a different item that begins with H to take on a trip. They will also have to remember which item everyone else in their group is taking.
3. You may wish to start the round as an example. Say, "I am going on a trip, and I am taking a handbag." Instruct the first student to repeat your item, and add another H word.

For example, she might say, "I am going on a trip. I am taking a handbag and a hamburger." The next person might say, "I am taking a handbag, a hamburger, and a horse!"

You can easily see how much fun it will be for your students to practice their beginning consonants!

4. After each student has had one or more turns with the first consonant, begin a new round with a different consonant.
